Important Information About Your Openplan Summary Statement

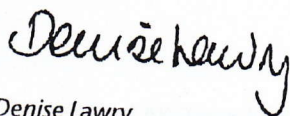

We're always listening to feedback from our customers about Openplan. Many of our customers have told us that they are receiving their Summary Statement too frequently which is why we've reviewed how often they are sent. I'd like to take this opportunity to let you know that your Summary Statement will now be issued less often when there are no transactions on your Current Account.

Customers who do not transact on their Current Account in a month will receive their Summary Statement on a quarterly, rather than monthly basis. If you do transact in a month you will continue to receive your Summary Statement on a monthly basis.

However, if you don't transact on your Current Account but would prefer to continue to receive a Summary Statement every month, please call us on the number printed on the front of your statement or pop into your local branch.

May I thank you for choosing Openplan from The Woolwich.

Kind Regards

The value of investments is not guaranteed and may go down as well as up. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. All valuations shown are based on the statement date unless otherwise stated. If you have invested recently, or invested when the buying (offer) price was higher than it is now, the total value of your investment may not yet show an increase over the amount originally invested. We recommend that stock market based investments should be retained for a period of at least five years, as the difference between the buying and selling price must be made up by growth in the unit price or share price before your investment can move into profit.

All Unit Trust prices are bid prices. The bid price is the selling price on the summary statement date and is the price that would have been used to calculate the value of your investment had you sold on a forward basis on the summary statement date.
